

Your next photo is a lesson.

Snap a café, a street, a sunset. Linguini finds the words inside your photo and turns them into bite-size lessons in Spanish or French.

Your photo.

Your words.

el puente

the bridge

/ˈpwente/

noun · masculine

Word lists don't know where you live.

You can finish a lesson and still struggle to describe your own day. With Duolingo, you follow a course. With Google Translate, you get a translation. With Linguini, a moment from your life becomes a lesson: the café you visited, the desk you work at, the photo you just took. You learn the language to describe what matters to you.

Your life becomes the lesson.

Learn the objects, their attributes and their relationships: a bridge, a red bridge, a red bridge over the sea. Build from words to descriptions of the whole scene through grammar practice, I-Spy and your journal. You finish with something you made: a page of your life in another language, ready to revisit as your collection grows.

A lesson worth playing. A memory worth keeping. A reason to return.

From snapshot to sentence

1 Snap a moment, or borrow one

Take a photo wherever you are: your desk, the bus stop, the view from a bridge. No photo today? Pick one of the ready-made scenes instead.

2 Linguini spots words and descriptions

Discover objects, their attributes and their relationships: a bridge, a red bridge, a bridge over the sea.

3 Learn the words. Practise the grammar.

Explore your word cards, fill the gap and build a sentence about your scene. Put new vocabulary to work while the photo is still in front of you.

noun · feminine

la libreta

the notebook

Fill the gap

La libreta tiene dos ____ blancas.

páginas

página

4 Play a game of I-Spy

Solve Linguini's clue about your photo. Then swap roles: describe an object yourself and see if Linguini can guess it.

Linguini says

Veó, veó... algo que es amarillo y sirve para escribir.

✓ el lápiz

el móvil

la libreta

la planta

5 Keep the day in your journal

Write a few lines with your new words. Linguini highlights the ones you used, adds XP, and your streak grows another farfalle.

El puente rojo

Hoy crucé el puente en coche. Desde el puente vi el mar azul y las colinas verdes. ¡La torre roja es enorme!
